Once Fisher inoculated these amino acids in male rats, it intensified their testosterone manufacture; and once he inoculated them into the female rats, it increased their progesterone.

One of the only limitations to using lasers in avian medicine is the high cost of purchasing or leasing a unit.